Catheters: A Comparison of Single- vs Double-Cuffed Cuffed Portions. Double-cuffed Cuffed (DCC) catheters have been proposed as a means of reducing the risk of central-line-associated bloodstream infections. In clinical practice, where routine DCC catheters are not available, "double-cuff" refers to the addition of a cuff to an existing single-cuffed catheter. A cross-sectional comparison of single and DCC Cuffed Portions of polyurethane cuffed I.V. catheters was conducted. Univariate analyses of catheter designs, catheter tip location, and tubing materials were performed. There was no statistically significant difference in catheter tip location or catheter materials between the single-cuffed and DCC catheters. There was a statistically significant difference in the location of the DCC Cuffed Portions relative to
