Astrid is an end-of-the-world radio station that broadcasts messages warning of impending doom. It begins in 2019, when 50 years have passed since the events of Ultima VI and its final countdown has begun. With the West coast under the mercy of a hurricane, Astrid's programming is focused on the East. The station's theme song is "Come Together," which plays while the Ultima VI logo is displayed. During the next few years, the West Coast is hit by a series of natural disasters (a tsunami, a forest fire, another hurricane), resulting in a huge loss of life. The end of the world is coming, but the weather does not cooperate. Astrid begins broadcasting a message about the end of the world on September 21, 2023. Just before the end of the world, the large-scale Ultima VI clock (as used in Ultima V) is activated and begins a countdown to the end of the world. Astrid is apparently destroyed in the event, its followers having perished with it. However, one of Astrid's last messages states that the station is still broadcasting its message.
