I have a maven-jetty-plugin in my POM.xml. When I run the mvn jetty:run in the local directory, it prints out the console messages and then exits (I think this means the server is being started). However, I want to change the "src" directory to a directory on a server. I've tried using the URL to as a path, but that didn't work. Any idea how I can configure the jetty server so that I can point it to the local directory and have it upload files from the local directory to the server's directory? A: Try this plugin: 2d92ce491b
