Edit The Edit tool enables you to edit, rotate, and scale images. In order to use the Edit tool, you must first select the Object tool. The Edit tool allows you to apply additional layers to the image and make changes. The arrow (Figure 2.2) at the lower left corner of the canvas is the main tool in the Edit tool. After selecting Object, the arrow button turns into a tool box with five tabs that you can use to manipulate the image (Figure 2.3). Figure 2.3 : The top toolbox contains various edit tools. Draw/Drawing The Draw/Drawing tool enables you to draw, paint, fill, and trim your images. You can move and cut objects using the Draw tool and use the Pen tool to trace over lines or simply draw a line from the mouse. You may, for example, use the Draw tool to guide you when you use one of the tools that change color, such as the Eyedropper. The Pen tool enables you to draw a path that you can fill with color (see Using the Pen tool to create a path in Figure 2.4). You can also use the Eraser tool to remove a path once it has been filled. Figure 2.4 : Using the Pen tool The Paintbrush tool enables you to apply a texture, color, or brushstroke to the image. The Eraser tool enables you to remove objects from the image as well as erase entire strokes. The Selection tool makes it easier to manipulate areas of an image to create selection handles. You can also use the Brush tool and the Magic Wand tool to create selections. You can use the Rectangular Selection tool to create rectangular areas in an image. Q: CentOS - Unable to set up NAT gateway on Physical Machine, but works fine on Virtual Machine I have a CentOS 6.5 x64 physical machine that I'm trying to configure an internal network with NAT gateway. I have two NIC's, which are both "up" (as far as I know). In VirtualBox, I have configured a NAT gateway on the second NIC, this lets me SSH into my system. The issue is that when I try to create a NAT gateway in CentOS, I get: To configure a NAT gateway: # ethtool -s up # ifconfig # ethtool -s up # ifconfig address xxx.xxx.xxx.xxx # ifconfig netmask xxx.xxx.xxx.xxx # ifconfig up # ifconfig pre-up down # ifconfig promisc up # route add default gw xxx.xxx.xxx.xxx # ifconfig xxx.xxx.xxx.xxx netmask xxx.xxx.xxx.xxx # ifconfig up # ifconfig pre-up down # route add default gw xxx.xxx.xxx.xxx # ifconfig xxx.xxx.xxx.xxx netmask xxx.xxx.xxx.xxx # ifconfig up # ifconfig pre-up down # route add default gw xxx.xxx.xxx.xxx # ifconfig up # ifconfig pre-up down # ip route show /etc/sysconfig/network-scripts/ifcfg-eth0 TYPE=Ethernet BOOTPROTO=dhcp IPADDR=xxx.xxx.xxx.xxx NETMASK=xxx.xxx.xxx.xxx GATEWAY=xxx.xxx.xxx.xxx I have no networking experience, so I might be doing something obviously wrong. A: Needed to enable IPv4 forwarding to move this forward. # sysctl -w net.ipv

D-2 receptor blockade attenuates sevoflurane anesthetic-induced neuroprotection in developing rats. A recent study revealed that neuroprotective effects of sevoflurane are mediated by the activation of dopamine D(2) receptor. We have previously reported that anesthetic neurotoxicity is attenuated by the dopamine D(2) receptor antagonist haloperidol. The aim of this study was to investigate if D(2) receptor blockade would affect the neuroprotective properties of sevoflurane in developing rats. Three-day-old Sprague-Dawley rats were exposed to sevoflurane 3 h/d for 5 d. The rats were pretreated with either saline, haloperidol (0.01 mg/kg), or MDL 100907 (0.1 mg/kg), a selective antagonist of the dopamine D(2) receptor, 30 min prior to each session. The effect of sevoflurane on hippocampal neurons in vivo was examined 7 d after the last exposure by stereotactic injection of propidium iodide (PI) into the dentate gyrus. PI injection caused nuclear PI staining within pyramidal neurons of CA(1) but not CA(3). Sevoflurane significantly attenuated the anesthetic-induced neuroprotection in dentate gyrus of CA(1) but not CA(3). The protective effect of sevoflurane was dose dependent, with higher doses of sevoflurane required for protection in CA(3) than in CA(1). Haloperidol significantly attenuated sevoflurane-induced neuroprotection in CA(3). MDL 100907 did not affect the anesthetic-induced neuroprotection in any subregion. These results indicated that the neuroprotective properties of sevoflurane are mediated by activation of the dopamine D(2) receptor. The antagonism of sevoflurane-induced neuroprotection by haloperidol in CA(3) may be due to D(2) blockade. Characterization of the nuclear and mitochondrial genomes of an invasive aquatic fungus, Sclerotiniaceae sp. The Sclerotiniaceae fungus is a major threat to aquaculture industry. However, the exact mechanism underlying its invasion remains unclear. In this study, the first complete nuclear and mitochondrial genomes were sequenced in the Sclerotiniaceae fungus. The nuclear
